MADERO ADDRESSES INSURRECTO FORCES

Jan noblemen. Grizzled Jose de la Luz Blanco received his commission as colonel. Pancho Villa clanked up in his spurs and silver trimmings to be made a colonel. Raul Madero, brother of the insurrecto president, was made a major.

One Not Present.

Madero made a short speech to each of the men, thanking them for the part they had played in the war and commending them for their bravery. There was a touch of pathos when the name of major Eduardo Hoy was read. He was to be made a lieutenant colonel for bravery in action. Wounded and a prisoner at Chihuahua, major Hoy could not be present to accept his promotion, but his commission will be held for him by the president and it will be conferred on occasion of a public ceremony when the brave little engineer is given his liberty.

There was something significant about this review. The serious look on the men's faces showed that they felt that they would be together but a few days more. Perhaps this was the last time they would rub elbows with their companions with whom they had fought at Matamoros, at Cerro Prieta and Casas Grandes. Then the band struck up a lively tune, the men broke ranks and scampered to their brush tents and the first review of the insurrecto army was over.

Madero's Address.

The address made by Madero to his men following the conferring of commissions was as follows:
"Soldiers of the Army of Liberation: With great enthusiasm and resolution have you followed me to the walls of Ciudad Juarez, to attack it and to take it. Such was the resolution which you brought with you and I know perfectly well that you could have taken the town. Never have I doubted your bravery and your heroism, but it is my duty before sacrificing so many lives to seek if there is not some way of settling the pending question which has sprinkled our country with blood.

"I repeat, it is my duty to see whether it is not possible to settle it in an honorable way without the spilling of more blood. Honorable for our cause, honorable for the whole Mexican people, for you have represented the people, their aspirations and their ideals. But be assured that when we shall arrive at some peaceful settlement it will be on the basis that our honor is respected and I shall give you absolute guarantees.

"To Obtain All They Want.
I shall arrange it, gentlemen, in such a way that we shall obtain everything we desire and that all the aspirations of the Mexican people be brought about, because otherwise it would be useless to settle. To put a check on the desire of the people would be a folly. This has been the cause of the downfall of the dictator.

"Such a thing I would not commit in the name of the people because I am with the people in all their aspirations and I know their capabilities. I am resolved that whatever terms we shall make they shall be honorable and advantageous to us and they must assure the complete triumph of the revolution. Without that assurance we cannot have liberty nor peace in the republic.

"The one thing that I expect of you is that you remain patient. That you be self-denying and long-suffering; that you do as I do, though you fought face to face with the enemy. You must be self-denying to face the wind, the rain and the burning rays of the sun which are stronger here than in your mountain homes. And I know that you will overcome everything in the cause of liberty.

"I have the sincere hope that all will end quickly. That it will end favorably without firing another shot or spilling another drop of brotherly blood.

The Men Commissioned.

The complete list of commissions that were conferred were: Pascual Orozco, brigadier general; Jose de la Blanco, colonel; Francisco Villa, colonel; Augustine Estrada, colonel; Guisepi Garabaldi, colonel; Eduardo Hay, lieutenant colonel; Roque Gonzales-Garza, major; Juan Dozal, major; Raul Madero, major; A. Armaja, major; Jose Orozco, major; Julian Ganados, major.

MADERO MAKES A PUBLIC STATEMENT

Gives Out Letter Repeating Some of His Former Assertions.

Francisco I. Madero has given out the following statement:
"Camp of the Army of Liberation, Headquarters Orillas de Bravo, in front of Ciudad Juarez, April 25, 1911.

"In no part of the world more than in this great nation does the press deserve the title of the fourth power, or fourth estate, as the press directs public opinion, so powerful in your republic--the first cradle of the liberty of Americans. It does not appear strange to me that our cause has attracted your sympathy, as it has of other American newspaper and of the press of the world, which is equivalent to the sympathy of the world itself; because our cause is just; because we are fighting for political rights, and the rights of man.

"This cause, which is the cause of battle, has always attracted the sympathy and indirect help of all people toward their brothers who are fighting for the ideals.

"Gen. Diaz, when he came to power, proclaimed the principle of free suffrage and no reelection. It was impossible to mock right at the beginning, these promises, and therefore he arranged that the presidency was occupied by one of his most loyal friends after his first term, and this friend had to give the promise to return the office to him after four years. Later, when he returned to the presidency the second time, he declared privately to his friends, and demonstrated through his deeds publicly, that death alone could uproot him from his power.

"In order to hold himself in his place,

FALL OF LERDO IS GIVEN CONFIRMATION

Mexico City, Mex., April 28.--At the war department the taking of Lerdo, Durango, by rebels is confirmed.

Unofficially it is reported that a skirmish between federals sent from Torreon and rebels occurred near Gomez Palacio, and that after the repulse of the former, the town of Gomez Palacio was occupied.

The towns of Torreon, Lerdo and Gomez Palacio are but a few miles apart and linked by a trolley line.

Orders were issued at the war department to Gen. Geronimo Trevino at Monterey and to Gen. Juvencio Robles at Torreon to send troops to engage the rebels.

That Torreon will be attacked is not considered likely. It is garrisoned by something like 700 men.

INSURRECTO SPREADING THE NEWS OF TRUCE.

Chihuahua, Mex., April 28.--News of the message to the military authorities suspending hostilities spread rapidly in all sections of Chihuahua. If not in reality, at least in effect, a flag of truce waves temporarily in most of the insurrecto camps in the interior, and every effort is made to have the news spread among the insurrecto chiefs that suspension of hostilities had been agreed upon.

One reason for this was to prevent any attacks by insurrectos on federal troops. Couriers carried the news from one insurrecto camp to another.

ALL REBELS MUST HAVE A SAY IN NEGOTIATIONS.

New Orleans, La., April 28.--Peace in Mexico cannot be assured for any length of time unless a definite agreement is drafted, satisfactory not only to those revolutionists directly controlled by Francisco I. Madero in the state of Chihuahua, but to the rebel forces in the western, central and southern parts of the republic, is the substance of a statement issued by Dr. Vasquez Gomez, diplomatic agent of the insurrectos, who stopped here en route to El Paso.

REPORTS OF A BATTLE IN STATE OF PUEBLA.

Puebla, Mex., April 28.--Reports have been received here of a battle at San Bartolo Florida Bosque, a village near the towns of Amozoc and Chachalapa, in this state. The rebels were defeated, leaving 13 dead and 14 wounded. The federal loss was nine dead and 16 wounded.

A band of rebels recently defeated at Matamoros Icarus is reported to have recaptured that place.

$20 Hats $9.95

Don't overlook the splendid special value we are now offering in "Pink" hats. We have a few "Pink" dress hats, in values up to $20.00, that are now on sale at $9.95.

REBELS IN COAHUILA NOT STRONG FOR PEACE.

Eagle Pass, Texas, April 28.--Rebels south of here are disregarding the Mexican armistice, which they say they never agreed to, according to information reaching here.

The Southern Pacific offices here have received orders to accept no freight into Mexico beyond Monclova, 150 miles south of Eagle Pass. No passenger tickets are to be sold beyond that point.

A MACHINE GUN DRIVES THE REBELS FROM PARRAS.

Saltillo, Mex., April 28.--Parras, the town recently taken after a hard fight by rebels, has been taken by federals. The rebels defended the place for hours, but were finally driven out by the federals using machine guns.

FORMER OFFICIAL'S SON IS ARRESTED AS AN INSURRECTO.

Matamoros, Mex., April 28.--Anarchico Lara, son of former postmaster Dominguez Lopez de Lara, was arrested here yesterday by federal authorities and papers said to implicate him as a rebel were captured.

REYES SAILS SATURDAY.

Havre, France, April 28.--Gen. Benardo Reyes will sail from here Saturday on the French liner La Provence.
